ary force; Edgar G. Londrosch, Winnebago, Neb., M. T. Co. 468, M. T. S. Train, 417, Camp Johnston, Fla.

Wakefield Republican: Little Helen Leamer, of Des Moines, is visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Leamer. Mrs. Sides of South Sioux City, came up Saturday and spent the day with Mrs. LeValley, returning Sunday. Mrs. Walden, of Dakota City, who has been with Mrs. LeValley for the past few days, returned with her. The funeral of a Crane, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crane, of South Sioux City, was held at the cemetery Sunday, and was preached by Rev. Phillips of that place. He was killed at a railway crossing at South Sioux City Friday afternoon when a car in which he was riding was struck by a freight train.

Sioux City Journal, 11: One of the five stars in the service flag of A. B. Cownie, of South Sioux City, was turned into gold last night by the war department's announcement that his third son, Private Brodie G. Cownie, had died July 27 from wounds received in action while fighting with the Rainbow division in the Aisne-Marne battle. The telegram follows: "A. B. Cownie, South Sioux City: Deeply regret to inform you that it is officially reported that Private Brodie G. Cownie, infantry, died July 27, from wounds received in action." Private Cownie, who enlisted in Company L, of the old Second Iowa national guard, April 6, 1917, the day war was declared, was one of five brothers in the service. A brother, Frank Cownie, is a member of the same company. A letter received by Mr. Cownie a few days ago stated that Private Brodie Cownie had been discharged from the hospital July 9, after recovering from a slight shrapnel wound received in action. The letter stated that he was returning to the trenches. Cownie apparently took part in the American victory on the Marne with the One Hundred and Sixty-eighth infantry, which distinguished itself in that drive. He was 22 years old and was born in Sioux City. Four brothers in the service, Frank Cownie, Rainbow division; James Cownie, navy, Seattle, Wash.; Albert Cownie, Second infantry, Camp Travis, San Antonio, Tex.; and Harry Cownie, infantry, Camp Devine, Mass., and two sisters, Elsie Cownie and Charlotte Cownie, survive him.

Ponca Journal: Etta and June Beermann of Dakota City, are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Cornell, this week. Some of the cars composing the noon train coming from Sioux City yesterday left the track near Willis. They tore up about three car lengths of track or more before leaving the track. The work train which is constructing a new railway bridge in Ponca went down with its engine and caboose, bringing back the passengers and mail, but did not proceed any further up the line. The track was replaced and the train put on the rails about 11:30 p. m., bringing both passenger trains into Ponca at midnight. No one was hurt. Joe Walley, who is working for Chris Smith of near Vista, was badly hurt in an auto accident Sunday evening and is being cared for at the home of Jas. Bigley. Mr. Walley left Ponca on his motorcycle Sunday evening at about 8 o'clock for his home at the Smith farm. He went south from Ponca over the Sioux City road and as he was going down the Kullin hill at a

Candidate for Republican Nomination

For United States Senator Charles H. Sloan

Congressman Sloan has a record long and extensive enough to permit judgment by works as well as by words. He is no unknown quantity. He is a winning candidate. He is a political tally sheet which contains not a single defeat. He is a loyal member of his party, devoted to its principles and working in harmony with its leaders. He represents and expresses party solidarity and in doing so is able to obtain these things in legislation which make for the greatest general good. He has a congressional record that is eloquent in service well done. He has risen to high ranks at Washington. There is no reason to assume that he will belie his past achievements or rest under the laurels he has already won. There is every reason to believe that if the republicans of Nebraska choose him as their candidate for senator and the citizens at the later election ratify that choice by an election he will continue to give to his state the same high order of faithful service that has distinguished his congressional record. For these reasons the Republican believes that Congressman Sloan is the strongest senatorial candidate now before the people of Nebraska and the republicans of the state should give him a strong plurality vote on August 20th.—The York Republican.

high rate of speed he collided with Ora Campbell, who was accompanied by his family and returning from Sioux City in an auto. They met at a turn in the road. The motorcycle was badly wrecked and Mr. Walley was dragged about thirty feet and the left side of his face being badly injured. He was brought to Ponca and taken to the Jas. Bigley home where he is receiving medical treatment. The auto was damaged to some extent and taken to Hart's garage for repairs, but Mr. Campbell and his family were not injured.

County Agent's Field Notes

C. R. Young, County Agent

Three persons having walnut trees on their premises have said that Uncle Sam can have them, but that they cannot do the cutting and hauling. As soon as sufficient trees can be located to make a car load some one will be secured to make them ready for shipment. If you have trees let us know, the government is willing to pay a good price for them. The saving of grain through the use of tight racks in threshing and stacking is proving very profitable, as explained by numerous farmers, so much so that they could be economically used every year.

Last week a call came to look after a bunch of hogs in which some sickness appeared to be breaking out. We found the affected hogs, three in number, weighing 140 lbs. each, with high fevers, and having great difficulty in using their hind quarters. Being unable to detect the cause of the trouble, one of these animals was opened. The stomach was full of nothing but mud and the large intestines was full of large, hard balls of pure earth. It at once became very evident that there was something lacking in the ration received by these hogs. Very likely a mineral mixture will correct the difficulty. The feeding of some slop or the soaking of all or a part of the grain fed to these hogs will likely prove a very great help. Even hogs, like people, relish a change of diet and do better for it. A good mineral mixture consists of 100 lbs. of coal slack to which has been added, 5 lbs. Epsom salts, 5 lbs. sulphur, 6 lbs. cop-

Answer to "I Did Not Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier."

The reply made by Dr. James L. Hughes of Toronto to Edwin Markham's rhymed opposition to the raising of an American army, to meet and combat the rush of Kaiser Wilhelm's Prussian hordes, will find an echo in the heart of every mother and will appeal to every loyal American. Markham called his poem "I Did Not Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier," and reads as follows:

"O Mothers will you longer give your sons To feed the awful hunger of the guns? What is the worth of all these battle drums If from the field the loved one never comes? What all these loud hosannas to the brave, If all you share is some forgotten grave?"

Dr. Hughes' reply breathes of faith divine, and courage to make the supreme sacrifice, to drain the cup to its bitter dregs and say, "Thy will, oh God, not mine, be done." His reply reads as follows: God raise my son in trust to me; Christ died for him, and he should be a man for Christ. He is his own, And God's and man's; not mine alone, He was not mine to "give." He gave Himself that he might help to save All that a Christian might revere, All that enlightened men hold dear.

"To feed the guns!" Oh, torpid soul! Awake and see life as a whole, When freedom, honor, justice, right, With heart aflame and soul alight, He bravely went for God to fight Against base savages whose pride The laws of God and man defied, Who slew the mother and her child, Who maidens pure and sweet defiled. He did not go to "feed the guns," He went to save from ruthless Huns His home and country, and to be A guardian of democracy.

"What if he does not come?" you say; Ah, well! My sky would be more gray, But through the clouds the sun would shine, And vital memories be mine. God's test of manhood is, I know, Not "will he come?" but "did he go?" My son well knew that he might die, And yet he went, with purpose high, To fight for peace and overthrow The plans of Christ's relentless foe. He dreaded not the battlefield; He went to make fierce vandals yield; If he come not again to me I shall be sad; but not that he Went like a man—a hero true— His part unselfishly to do. My heart will feel exultant pride That for humanity he died.

"Forgotten grave!" This selfish plea Awakes no deep response in me, For, though his grave I may not see, My boy will ne'er forgotten be. My real son can never die; 'Tis but his body that may lie In foreign land, and I shall keep Remembrance fond forever, deep Within my heart for my true son, Because of triumphs that he won. It matters not where any one May lie and sleep when work is done.

It matters not where men may live; If my dear son his life must give, Hosannas I will sing for him, E'en though my eyes with tears be dim. And when the war is over, when His gallant comrades come again, I'll cheer them as they're marching by. Rejoicing that they did not die, And when his vacant place I see, My heart will bound with joy that he Was mine so long—my fair young son— And cheer for him whose work is done.
